The 'Stimulation' multi-sensory experiential restaurant is an immersive space that focuses on increasing connections between people through stimulation of the human senses. Situated on Fazeley Street, Digbeth, Birmingham the experience is a ideal location for immersive, quirky experiences within the city. The restaurant will serve a Molecular Gastronomy menu to offer a multi-sensory dining experience that emphasises sight, sound and smell in addition to the food served, to create a unique and unforgettable evening.

The idea was founded from the idea of 'connection' between people and how this had been lost due to the current COVID-19 global pandemic situation. The restaurant would focus on helping to re-create, increase and intensify these connections in the post-pandemic world.
